A woman missionary declares that there are more heathens in New York than in Tokio. New York doesn't propose to be left by any old town like Tokio.

A new industry has developed in Pennsylvania. A few nights ago thieves stole and carted off about a mile of copper wire from the poles of a telephone company.

An East St. Louis woman saved herself from being embalmed by moving her eyelids in the nick of time. No sensible woman would be found napping at a time like that.

In an editorial on the Senate opponents of the Administration policy in the Philippines the New York Tribune refers to them as "Tagals in the Senate." This sounds as if it might have come from asses in the sanctum.

The Vienna police have been instructed to draw the line on poker in the swell clubs, just because a rich banker bluffed an unsophisticated Earl and beat him out of $250,000 on a $250,000 bluff, which was above the Earl's pile.

It is estimated that Andrew Carnegie has donated to benevolent and other purposes during the past year something over $5,000,000. This doesn't include the $4,000 cable tolls he is said to have paid to cable Senator Hoar's speech to Hong Kong.

It is found that many of the rails used in the Trans-Siberian railway are too light for safety, and that many of the bridges are also too light, necessitating the use of heavier rails and stronger bridges, which will be done, although at an estimated cost of about $50,000,000. The road will cost $180,000,000.

The Boston Transcript remarks that it may be news to a good many people to learn that three hundred thousand pounds of sturgeon eggs, worth $180,000, are put up annually in this country. This smacks rather fishy but the Boston man probably knows what he is talking about.

Judge Lochren, ex-Commissioner of Pensions, narrowly escaped being shot in the court room in St. Paul a few days ago by a man against whom he had rendered a decision. The man was overpowered, disarmed and locked up in a room, from which he escaped by jumping from a second story window, but was arrested later. He was a partial paralytic. For a partial paralytic he seems to have been able to get up a pretty lively racket.

GEN. LEE'S BIRTHDAY

Memorial Exercises Held by Cape Fear Camp, U. C. V., Yesterday Afternoon.

WAS BORN 93 YEARS AGO.

Anniversary of the Birth of the Illustrious Soldier Observed With an Imposing Parade and Programme at the Opera House.

Yesterday was the birthday of General Robert E. Lee, who was born January 19th, 1807, and whose birthday is a legal holiday in the Southern States.

Cape Fear Camp, No. 254, United Confederate Veterans, of Wilmington, having determined to adopt the custom of memorializing the birthday of the immortal commander-in-chief of the Confederate armies, fittingly observed the day with memorial exercises yesterday afternoon. The Camp, together with all the military organizations of the city invited to participate in the occasion, rendezvoused at the armory of the Wilmington Light Infantry, and formed a procession on Market street, with the right of the column resting on Fourth street, the organizations falling into line as follows:

A Platoon of Policemen.
Second Regiment Band.
Cape Fear Camp, No. 254, U. C. V.
Third North Carolina Infantry Association.
Other Confederates and Visiting Veterans.
George Davis Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans.
Wilmington Light Infantry.
Wilmington Division, North Carolina Naval Brigade.
Col. Walker Taylor's Boys' Brigade.

Some of Cape Fear Camp appeared in Confederate regulation gray uniform, with army hats, and made a striking appearance. The other Confederates were in citizens clothes, and all together about 200 of the old veterans were in line. The Wilmington Light Infantry wore the blue dress uniform of the United States army, the Naval Reserves wore their dress uniform, and the Boys' Brigade appeared in khaki uniforms, and with the Second Regiment Band bedecked in its dress uniform, the procession was quite imposing. Altogether there were about 300 men in line.

Headed by Captain James I. Metts, Commander of Cape Fear Camp, and Dr. W. C. Galloway, one of his aides, mounted on horseback, the procession moved promptly at 3 P. M. The line of march was on Market street to Third, down Third to Orange, on Orange to Front, up Front to Market, on Market to Third, up Third to Princess, and on Princess to the Opera House.

Hundreds of people lined the streets and watched the parade. The veterans marched under their banner, and with the other colors in line the procession made a fine appearance as it marched. The old veterans made a decidedly soldierly appearance, and as the band played on the march they tramped to the music like they were wont to do in the sixties. The old heroes stepped spryly and looked like they could still put up a bad fight.

Upon arriving at the Opera House, with great crowds of on-lookers, the procession moved into the Opera House where seats were reserved for the veterans and the other organizations. The band took up a position in the orchestra, and an immense audience filled every spare seat in the parquet and dress circle. The Daughters of the Confederacy were present by special invitation of the veterans, and hundreds of the ladies of Wilmington and the citizens generally were there.

The Daughters of the Confederacy had decorated the stage for the occasion. In front was a stand for the orator, and on the left of the stage was a Confederate battleflag draped on an easel, while at the back of the stage were crossed a North Carolina State flag and a North Carolina regimental flag. Palms constituted the other decorations. Seated on the stage were Commander Metts and his aides and Junius Davis, Esq., the ofator of the occasion.

After music by the band, Commander Metts introduced the Rev. Robert Strange, D. D., who made a beautiful and appropriate prayer in which he asked blessings on those assembled, thanked God for the birth and exemplary character of General Lee, and gave praise for a now united country.

After the prayer, Commander Metts announced Mr. W. M. Cumming, the son of a gallant Confederate, who read the beautiful and stirring poem of Father Ryan, entitled "The Sword of Robert Lee." The reading of the poem was greeted with applause.

Commander Metts next read the touching farewell of General Lee to his troops at Appomattox, the reading of which was listened to with sadness by the audience.

Junius Davis, Esq., was then introduced by Commander Metts who announced that he would deliver an address on the great Confederate soldier and magnificent hero, "Old Marse Robert."

A burst of applause greeted Mr. Davis. Standing where his eminent father, the late Hon. George Davis, stood to pronounce a eulogy on Jefferson Davis, when the memorial exercises were held on the day when the President of the Confederacy was buried, Mr. Davis, the able son of the distinguished Attorney General of President Davis' cabinet, delivered a eulogy on and sketch of the life and service of the peerless Lee.

Mr. Davis said that instead of delivering a formal address he would, by request, read a sketch of the great Confederate soldier. He began with the birth of General Lee, January 19th, 1807, in Westmoreland county, Va., and read an admirably prepared sketch of the life of Lee. From the time he graduated second in his class at West Point military academy, he interestingly followed the career of General Lee—first in the engineer corps of the United States army, next distinguishing himself as a captain in the army in the war with Mexico, where his conspicuous and gallant services called forth honorable mention in Gen. Scott's reports, afterwards rising to a colonel of cavalry in the army, and at the breaking out of the civil war resigning his commission to cast his lot with the Southern Confederacy. Mr. Davis then gave an account of the appointment of Lee by President Davis as commander-in-chief of the Confederate army, and briefly sketched his distinguished services and the display of his great military genius in the campaign and battles leading up to the surrender at Appomattox. Upon conclusion, Mr. Davis paid a splendid and eloquent tribute to the life and character of General Lee.

When Mr. Davis closed, the veterans and audience broke forth with applause, the band played Dixie, and amid deafening cheers, the audience dispersed.

The veterans and military organizations fell in and proceeded to the City Hall, where a lunch was served for the veterans by the Daughters of the Confederacy. The organizations and others were the guests of Cape Fear Camp. The tables were arranged in the hall, and there were attractive decorations consisting of small Confederate flags, American Beauty roses, bamboo and long leaf pine. A sumptuous lunch of turkey and ham sandwiches, other substantials and pickles, coffee and tea were served by the ladies. While the lunch was being served, "The Old North State" was sung, and the veterans and their guests had a most enjoyable time. Thus ended the programme for the occasion.

Conspicuous in the ranks of the Wilmington Light Infantry yesterday was Col. John L. Cantwell, a Mexican and Confederate veteran, and still an active member of the Wilmington Light Infantry, of which he was also a former captain. Unlike the other members, however, Col. Cantwell wore the Confederate gray—the old uniform which he wore during the civil war.

In the ranks of Cape Fear Camp was Capt. W. L. Harlow, who was doubtless the youngest soldier in all the Confederate armies. His mother having died, he went to the war with his father, the late Mr. W. S. Harlow, who entered the service from this city. He was then twelve years of age, but he enlisted in the Confederate service, and served in Company D, Third North Carolina Regiment. He was at the battles of Gettysburg and Sharpsburg, and in fact took his part as a soldier in the Maryland and Pennsylvania campaigns.

Capt. A. L. DeRosset, a member of Cape Fear Camp, on yesterday wore the cape of the Confederate overcoat which he had while lieutenant of Company H, Third North Carolina Regiment. The cape contains a bullet hole made while Capt. DeRosset was in battle.

A number of Confederate Veterans were here from other places yesterday and took part in the celebration. Among them were ex-Congressman B. F. Grady, of Duplin county, and the Hon. W. L. London, who is now Brigadier General of the Second Brigade, N. C. Division, U. C. V.

A FRESHET IS ON.

The Enormous Rainfall of Thursday Night Floods the Streams—Washouts in Railroads Delay Trains.

There was an enormous rainfall here and throughout eastern North Carolina on Thursday night. In Wilmington the Weather Bureau recorded a precipitation of 2.74 inches of rain. The streets were running streams of water in some parts of the city.

Trains Annulled.

The rains caused the streams in the country to be flooded, and there were washouts on the Yadkin and Wilmington and Newbern branches of the Atlantic Coast Line. An hour before the time for the 9 A. M. train to leave for Fayetteville and Sanford, a telegram was received from Currie stating that there was a serious washout on the track near Montague. The train which was to leave here was consequently annulled, and the train bound here was stopped at Fayetteville and annulled. A wrecking train was sent out and several washouts between Wilmington and Currie were repaired. The trains will resume the regular schedule this morning.

Washout on the W. & N.

On the Wilmington & Newbern branch there was a washout at Trent river. It was repaired, however, and the train bound for Wilmington and due here at 12:15 P. M., was delayed and did not get here till 5 o'clock last evening. The train which should have left here at 2:25 P. M., left 5:30 P. M. To-day all trains will run as usual.

There was high water along the Wilmington & Weldon railroad but the trains arrived and departed on time. The train due here at 12:30 P. M. on the southern branch was behind time but it was on account of delayed connections south of Florence.

Washout on the Carolina Central.

On the Seaboard Air Line, two miles east of Cronly, high water caused a washout and rendered a trestle for about fifteen or twenty feet impassible. Capt. T. D. Meares, the general agent of the Seaboard Air Line, went up with an extra train, and the train from Charlotte, due here at 12.05 P. M., transferred its passengers, baggage, mail and express to the extra train at the washout. The passengers got here safely, but a little behind time. The damage to the trestle has been repaired, and trains will run on the regular schedule to-day.

THE DAUGHTERS OF THE CONFEDERACY.

Cape Fear Chapter Held Its Annual Meeting and Elected Officers Yesterday. Relics for the Museum.

Cape Fear Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, held its annual meeting yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at the armory of the Wilmington Light Infantry. The president, Mrs. W. M. Parsley, presided and the secretary, Miss Kate Harlow, recorded the minutes.

The election of officers, which was the special order of the meeting, took place, the incumbent officers being re-elected as follows:

President—Mrs. W. M. Parsley.
Vice President—Mrs. Gabriel Holmes.
Secretary—Miss Kate Harlow.
Treasurer—Miss Mary F. Meares.
Registrar—Miss Mary Sanders.

Miss Rodman, of Washington, N. C., who is president of the North Carolina Division, Daughters of the Confederacy, arrived in the city yesterday and was present at the meeting. She was introduced and received a most cordial greeting from the members of the Chapter.

Miss Rodman, upon being introduced to the Chapter, made an interesting talk. Among other things she gave an account of the general convention of the Daughters of the Confederacy held at Richmond a few months ago, and spoke of the work being done by the organization in North Carolina. She stated that the Division is making splendid progress and now embraces twenty-three Chapters, which is a gratifying increase for the past year.

Miss Rodman brought with her and consigned to the custody of Cape Fear Chapter a fac simile of the Great Seal of the Confederate States of America, which was made by the same man in England who made the original seal of the Confederacy. The fac simile of the Great Seal was donated to the North Carolina Division by Mrs. Ayers, of Washington, D. C., who is a North Carolina lady. Cape Fear Chapter, by right of being the first to be organized in the State, becomes the custodian of the valuable donation made by Mrs. Ayers.

At the meeting of Cape Fear Chapter yesterday no other business besides the election of officers was transacted, but the Chapter was pleased to receive a number of valuable contributions for its museum of Confederate war relics maintained at the armory of the Wilmington Light Infantry, where, as is well known, a room is set apart for the museum.

Among the contributions was one from Mrs. Dr. Thos. F. Wood, who sent a portrait of her lamented husband, Dr. Thos. F. Wood, who was surgeon of the Third North Carolina Regiment.

Mrs. Gaston Meares donated the original commission first issued to her distinguished husband, the late Col. Gaston Meares.

Col. W. J. Woodward sent the Chapter a copy of the inscription on the tablet containing the record of North Carolina in the civil war, which the Raleigh Chapter presented to the Confederate Museum at Richmond, Va.

Mr. W. M. Cumming contributed a portrait of his father, the late Captain W. A. Cumming, assistant quartermaster, Confederate States army.

Col. W. J. Woodward presented the Chapter with a file of the Confederate Veteran, published at Nashville, Tennessee.

"AMONG THE BREAKERS."

Pretty Two-Act Drama and Tableaux Presented Last Evening by Amateurs at Luther Hall.

Under the auspices of the Mengert Mission Circle of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, the two-act drama, "Among the Breakers," with tableaux, was presented last evening at Luther Memorial Hall to a good audience, considering the very inclement weather.

The performance was one of the best amateur productions seen in Wilmington for some time, each person in the cast portraying his or her part with an excellence that would do credit to professional dramatists. The cast, which embraces some of the best local talent in the city, is as follows:

David Murray, Keeper of Fair Points Lights, Mr. Carl Rehder.
Larry Divine, His Assistant, Mr. John Myers.
Hon. Bruce Hunter, Mr. Charles Blomme.
Clarence Hunter, His Ward, Mr. Will Rehder.
Peter Paragraph, A Newspaper Reporter, Mr. Bob Banks.
Scud, Hunter's Colored Servant, Mr. Peter Fick.
Minnie Daze, Hunter's Niece, Miss Gertrude Wessell.
Bess Starbright, "Cast up by the Waves," Miss Lottie Haar.
"Mother Carey," A Reputed Fortune Teller, Miss Lizzie Weimer.
Biddy Bean, An Irish Girl, Mrs. Freimuth.

The tableaux, which consisted of the scenes, "The Niobe Group," "The Toilet of the Bride," "The Death of Virginia," "The Dance of the Muses" and "Rock of Ages," were very pretty and one of the most interesting features of the programme. The following ladies composed the different scenes: Mrs. Chas. Blomme, Miss Elizabeth Otten, Miss Mattie Strauss, Miss Annie Adrian, Miss Kate Runge, Miss Louise Heins, Miss Emma Hutaff, Miss Sarah Boinest and Miss Christine Hintze.

All the schools suspended for the day, and many of the pupils attended the celebration by the veterans at the City Hall and Opera House. Death of Mrs. Mary E. Brooks.

Capt. Ed. Wilson Manning, yesterday morning received a telegram from Portsmouth, Va., announcing the death of Mrs. Mary E. Brooks, aged 89 years, who passed away peacefully and quietly at 10.30 P. M. Thursday night. There were by her bedside, her five sons and two daughters: Capt. W. B. Brooks, U. S. Navy retired, of Erie, Pa.; E. C. Brooks, Esq., E. K. Brooks, father of Mrs. John H. Hardin, of Wilmington, and Mr. Crawford Brooks, of Portsmouth; S. F. Brooks, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Ed. Wilson Manning, of Wilmington, and Miss Jane A. Brooks, of Portsmouth. Her grand children living in Wilmington, are Mrs. M. A. Gause, Miss Katie Manning, E. W. Manning, Jr., and Mrs. John H. Hardin; great grand children, Miss Annie Gause, Miss Jennie Hardin, Lauriston, Edward and Susan Lane Hardin.

The Blanche's Accident.

The tug Blanche was hauled out yesterday on the marine railway and upon examination it was found that much damage was sustained to her machinery. Her shaft is broken in the sleeve, causing the propeller to fall back against her rudder post, the lower part of it resting upon the shoe. The damage was evidently caused by her wheel striking a log, as small pieces of wood were found stuck on the bolt heads of the prop eller. A survey will be held to-day to ascertain the amount of damage, which will be considerable, besides the loss of time in repairing.

C. C. Stockholders.

The meeting of stockholders of the Carolina Central Railway, appointed to have been held in this city yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, was adjourned until Monday, January 29th, at the same hour. Only the local stockholders were present at the meeting.

CANINE CONVENTION.

Watchdogs of the City Meet to Protest Against the Action of the Board of Aldermen.

Honest watchdogs of the city of Wilmington met in mass convention a night or two ago, to consider recent action, inimical to their welfare, by the Board of Aldermen. The exact time and place of meeting, for obvious reasons, cannot be stated.

General Growler, a mastiff of dignified demeanor and imposing presence, from one of the vessels in port, was present and took the chair, on motion of a venerable hound—Bingo was his name—and a staid old fellow, known as "Little Dog Schneider," filled the position of secretary.

General Growler expressed his appreciation of the honor. He said that he was an old sea-dog and had visited many places on the "habitable globe," but never before had he witnessed such a condition of affairs as existed among the canines of Wilmington; night after night during the dog watch on his vessel he had listened to the moaning of the tied, and his sympathies had been deeply stirred for his suffering brethren.

On motion, a committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Barker, Snapper and Snarler, was appointed to suggest some plan of action, and withdrew for consultation. During their absence a quartette of pugs and pointers rendered with touching effect the following:

'Old Dog Tray is ever faithful,
Grief cannot drive him away;
He is gentle, he is kind,
You will never, never find,
A better friend than Old Dog Tray."

An invitation having been extended to the convention to partake of a collation of cold bones, spread in an adjoining field, a recess of fifteen minutes was then taken.

Upon reassembling, the committee reported through their chairman—Barker—that after considering the matter they would recommend an appeal be taken to the better class of citizens to assist the dogs in their efforts to secure relief from the intolerable persecution to which they are now subjected and if possible to muzzle the Board of Aldermen and tie up the police for thirty days.

Mr. Barker said he had heard recently one gentleman say to another that the city government was "going to the dogs." He (Barker) did not think that this was likely, but if it did, he was confident a better state of affairs would soon be noticeable when the dogs had control. The scandalous carousals of cats in all parts of the city that were now of nightly occurrence, would be broken up, and no peaceful pedestrian would be liable to such sudden and unprovoked assaults by spiteful felines as had already been reported in the newspapers.

Mr. Snarler, of the committee, said the present Board of Aldermen and the police should be severely boycotted, if not barked at. He hoped no self-respecting dog would ever permit his tail to wag in the presence of any one of them.

The recommendation of the committee was unanimously adopted, and on motion the secretary was instructed to secure publication of the proceedings of the meeting in the MORNING STAR, as the Dog Star comes out late in the evening and is seen by but few people in Wilmington.

"Side Tracked."

"Side Tracked," purporting to be a a comedy drama, but in reality a melange of infantile imbecility, performed, or rather attempted to perform, last night at the Opera House. The cognomen of "Side Tracked was not at all inapplicable to their efforts, for if there ever was any fun, humor or wit attached to the show, it certainly was "side-tracked" before arriving in this city. It was superfluous in horse-play, abundant in foolish jokes, poor singing, and decidedly boring throughout. May they be "side-tracked" for a long time before pulling into Wilmington again.

BY WILLIAM H. BERNARD.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 20.

EDITORS ON TRUSTS.

The Editorial Association of Pennsylvania met at Harrisburg, Tuesday, and among other things gave some attention to trusts, the result of which was the adoption of the following resolutions:

"Resolved, By the Pennsylvania State Editorial Association that no trust should be fostered by legislation, such as tariff duties; in other words, that if trusts are honestly organized to reduce expenses, and consequently the cost of products, they should depend upon their own business sagacity, not upon protection given to them by the Government.

"Resolved, That holding to this belief as to all trusts, and believing that the recent increase in the cost of white paper and of type metal is due, in part, at least to the organization of trusts, and that it is made possible by tariff duties, we appeal to Congress to repeal such tariff duties as serve to protect the trusts in their extortionate charges."

This association is composed of editors belonging to the different political parties and is therefore not only a non-partisan, but a non-political body. It does not discuss political questions or even economic questions which enter into politics, and the probabilities are that it would not have touched this trust question if it did not touch them, touch them very heavily, and therefore they spoke.

A considerable number and perhaps a majority of the editors who voted for these resolutions are Republicans who had advocated the protective tariff which fosters trusts and is mainly responsible for the paper and metal trusts which were the cause of these resolutions. That is one of the reasons, perhaps, why the resolutions were so conservatively framed, because they didn't want to hit themselves too hard. They have, however, had an object lesson on high tariff protection presented by the paper, pulp and type metal trusts, and know how it feels to be squeezed for the benefit of some other fellow. But the resolutions are in the right direction and the cause of honesty and fair play has gained some advocates as a result of the squeezing by the pulp, paper and metal trusts.

Of course every publisher of papers or books, every job printer and other person who uses any considerable quantity of paper should take position against and fight the pulp and paper trusts, the pulp trusts because they grind the paper makers, and the paper trusts because they grind the paper consumers, and should demand the adoption of Hon. John D. Bellamy's bill repealing the duties on paper and paper-making materials which would open the field for competition and relieve the publishers and other consumers of paper from the exactions of these monopolistic trusts.

These editors represent a State where the protective policy has been popular, and which profited very much by it, for one of its greatest industries—iron making—was one of the most highly protected, and there was not probably, a Republican editor in this Harrisburg meeting who was not previously an advocate and defender of that kind of protection, and they would hardly be heard protesting against it now, as they do in these resolutions, if it hadn't proved a boomerang and hurt them.

But there is a principle involved in this question, in the fair, square recognition of which more people are interested than the consumers of paper and type metal—whether they be publishers or something else. If trusts on paper and type-metal are wrong and fit subjects for protest, are not all trusts which increase the price of the things they handle and squeeze money out of the people wrong and fit subjects for protest?

Are the paper and type-metal trusts any worse than the sugar trust, or a salt trust or a meat trust?

Are they any worse than an oil trust, a glass trust or a nail trust?

Are not the trusts that put up the prices of the necessaries of life as bad or worse than the trusts which put up the prices of articles used by certain callings, although the public may be incidentally interested in these articles?

These resolutions reach the kernel of the matter when they declare that if trusts are organized to reduce the cost of the things they produce they should depend for success on their own business sagacity and not upon the protection given them by the Government. That is true and so is the reverse of it true that the Government should not give protection to trusts, which should depend their own business sagacity; in other words business enterprises should not look to paternalism for success and the paternalism should not be extended to them if they do.

While trusts might be possible without a protective tariff, no sensible person thinks for a moment that there would be so many of them or that they would flourish as they do if it were not for the protective tariff. Without this there would be free competition from other countries and the trusts could not put the screws on their victims like they can when they have a monopoly and no competition to encounter.

If this protective tariff were not the fosterer of trusts why is it that the two countries which lead all others in the number and magnitude of their trusts are the United States and Germany, which give the most protection and therefore the most encouragement to the trust organizers? In Germany, as well as in this country, the voice of protest is being raised against them, for there as well as here they show inordinate greed and are merciless in their impositions on their home customers, while they sell for much less in foreign markets, where they have to compete with the traders of other nations, in this pursuing precisely the same course that our protected trusts do.

But it is a good sign when we see the editors of a State which has been devoted to the doctrine of protection thus plainly, although conservatively, protesting against one of the logical consequences of that protection.

THE EXPECTED HAPPENED.

As anticipated the Pop. State Executive Committee, or that part of it which met in Raleigh Thursday night, resolved to fuse with the Republican party and to join it in opposing the adoption of the constitutional amendment. This was done apparently in compliance with the suggestion of Senator Butler as indicated in a letter he wrote some time ago. Ever since Butler had that conference with Senator Pritchard in Washington, it was pretty well understood where Butler would be, and the motive was also understood.

But if there had been any doubt as to the motive it would have been removed by the public announcement of his candidacy for another term, made shortly after this conference, in an interview with the Washington correspondent of the Raleigh Post. The dicker between Pritchard and Butler is that Pritchard is to help Butler to hold his grip, and Butler is to help Pritchard to hold his. This is as plain as the nose on one's face.

It is a nice little job they have put up, but can either deliver the goods? Pritchard can come nearer doing his part of it than Butler can, although he may find more trouble in that than he anticipates, for there are a good many Republicans, and some of them of prominence, who favor the amendment and dispute the right of the bosses to dictate the course they must pursue. But Butler has discredited himself as a leader, for the people he led have caught on to his game pretty well by this time, so well that he will not find it as easy a job to lead them into the Republican camp as he did before they threw their X rays on him and saw through him.

On the whole, we think it is a good thing that Marion has decided to pool issues with Jeter and oppose white supremacy. He is steadily drifting to where he belongs and will eventually stick.

FIGHTING THE TRUSTS.

The convention of tobacco growers which met in Raleigh Thursday to devise some plan to get from under the hand of the tobacco trust, seems to have been in earnest and possibly the plan proposed and agreed upon by the convention may succeed provided the tobacco growers generally stand up to it. Whether the scheme goes further than contemplating the purchase and disposition of the leaf put upon the market we do not know, but it seems to us that it should embrace the manufacture of the leaf either by parties acting in co-operation with the growers, or by co-operation among the growers themselves. When they manufacture their own tobacco they become independent of leaf buyers and can snap their fingers at the trusts; not only that but they will get the best possible results from their crops for they will get not only the full value of the leaf they raise but also the difference in the value of the leaf and the manufactured article, and in addition to that they make permanent home markets for the tobacco they raise.

When the tobacco growers, or communities are reasonably prosperous it should not be a difficult matter to raise the capital to establish factories, for every one with money, interested in the business prosperity of the community, should be willing to take more or less stock in such an enterprise. The capital to begin with need not be large. Some of the largest factories now in North Carolina were started on a very small capital, a few thousand dollars, and some of them now handle millions of pounds of tobacco annually and every dollar invested came out of the business. Of course the men who managed these establishments had level heads and knew their business, but they bought their leaf in the open market, in competition with other manufacturers, and paid the highest market price for it. There were no trusts then to interfere with either the manufacturer or the grower and both were better off then than they now are.

Co-operation all along the line is the way to fight trusts.

Honesty is the best policy, if policy comes in connection with honesty, even in the cheese business. Americans were building up a nice cheese business with England, when some mean cusses got to stuffing or "filling" the cheese they shipped, and as a result the Canadians have yanked that business from the Yanks and now ship about $17,000,000 a year of the straight Canadian stuff. Before the trickery began our cheese makers shipped $15,000,000 a year, which has fallen to less than $3,000,000.

One of the druggists in Council Bluffs, Iowa, has discovered that it will not do to fool with some women. A Mrs. Sayles who got tired of that town concluded she would commit suicide, and instead of permitting her to have her way this druggist officiously popped in and dosed her with a lot of stuff that nullified the poison, and now she is suing him for damages, and having him prosecuted for practicing medicine without a diploma when he was only a common pharmacist.

A shop-lifter has been discovered in Kansas City equipped with three hands. One of them is built of wax, the fingers folded into another over her long cape to fool the shop folks, while the third hand attends to business and proceeds with lifting things. But they caught onto her game and now she has no use for the waxen auxiliary.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

— Southport Leader: Mrs. Ann Smith, of Suburb, an esteemed lady of 73 years, died on Thursday last, after an illness of several months.

— Charlotte News: Gastonia is taking strides forward which will soon put her in the list of cities and out of the lists of towns. Besides her industrial progress, in the shape of several new cotton mills, she is to have water works, electric lights and sewerage.

— Scotland Neck Commonwealth: The community was greatly saddened a few days ago at the announcement of the death of Mr. Charles Simmons at his home near Dawson. He was taken sick with something like la grippe on the 4th and died on the 11th.

— Mount Olive Advertiser: The county jail is crowded to the doors with persons waiting trial, and the sheriff has no little trouble in providing proper quarters for new boarders. If crime continues at its present rate, it is only a question of time when the jail will have to be enlarged.

— Wadesboro Messenger-Intelligencer: Mr. Wm. Lowry, of White Store township, is the father of a rather remarkable family. Mr. Lowry himself is 92 years old and has eleven children, all of whom are living, the youngest being about 41 years of age.

— Goldsboro Argus: The indications for a large strawberry crop this year were never better than now. Already the merchants along the line of the W. & W. R. R., between this city and Wilmington, which is in reality the strawberry belt of this State, are making extensive preparations for a big trade.

— Fayetteville Observer: Capt. E. C. Cox, conductor of through freight train No. 209, due here at 10 o'clock this (Thursday) morning, while passing Kenly, in attempting to get off the caboose, was struck on the head by a switch stand and seriously hurt. He was left at Kenly and will be taken to the A. C. L. hospital at Rocky Mount this afternoon. —— Mrs. Charles McMillan, of this city, received a telegram Wednesday stating that her brother, Mr. J. W. Davis, an engineer on the Southern Railway between Greenville, S. C., and Tuccoa, Ga., had been killed. The telegram gave no particulars, simply stating that he had been "killed" It is taken for granted that he was killed in a railroad accident.

— Durham Sun: Another murder, the first in quite a while in that locality of pollution and infamy, has been committed in Smoky Hollow. This occurrence was somewhere about 12 o'clock Wednesday night. One man lies cold and stiff in death, while another is painfully, though not deemed fatally shot. The dead man is Willard Sherron, and the wounded man George Waring. These two men were in that disreputable section, and while in front of the house of Alice Gudger, a colored woman, where a dance was in progress inside the house, they became involved in a fuss with a negro who had come out of the house. This negro pulled a pistol and fired at the two white men, one ball striking Sherron in the back, and another ball stiking Waring under the right arm. Sherron died about 4 o'clock Thursday morning. After being shot Sherron stated that the darky who did the shooting was Horace Jones. After he admitted that he did not know who did it.

Suffering with Rheumatism Exhausts Nerve and Strength PAINE'S Celery Compound CURES

H. R. Perry, Sr., Free Stone, Cal., writes:

"I have been troubled with rheumatism for over twenty years and had tried the most skillful physicians in our State without any relief when I began taking Paine's Celery Compound. Before I had used half a bottle, I was relieved. It cured my rheumatism permanently, and I believe it will cure any case of rheumatism."

CURRENT COMMENT.

—— It must be rather humiliating to the Hon. Grover Cleveland that he rarely gets his name in the papers these days unless he goes fishing or duck hunting.—Richmond Leader, Dem.

—— Japanese newspapers give sign that the country is drifting into a war with Russia, though to the world outside the collison does not seem imminent. Should it happen, Russia is likely to learn something about the Japanese which it didn't know before, as England is now doing in the case of the Boers.—New York Tribune, Rep.

—— The easiest way to build up a merchant marine would be to seize upon such an opportunity as is now presented in the imminence of European wars to buy foreign steamships and sail them under our own flag. Our stupid laws stand in the way, and speculative statesmen propose to remedy the difficulty by paying subsidies to enable shippers to buy and sail dear ships instead of permitting them to purchase cheap ones.—Philadelphia Record, Dem.

——The German Emperor is fuming over the detention and search of German vessels, suspected of carrying arms or provisions to the Boers; but is doing it in such away as to suggest an elaborate piece of acting. His object seems to be less to frighten the British than to impress his own people. He wants a great navy, which the German Parliament is reluctant to give him, and this is an excellent opportunity to impress the necessity for it upon the German mind.—Philadelphia Ledger, Ind.

TWINKLINGS.

— Clara, aged four, went into a drug store the other day, and stepping up to the proprietor, said, in a half whisper: "Suppose a little girl hasn't any money, how much chewing gum would you give her for a cent?"

— Mother—"Willie, didn't I say I'd whip you if you put another rubber button on the stove?" Willie—"Yes'm; but 'taint me this time, ma. It's pa smokin' one of them cigars you bought him for Christmas."

— Mrs. Highblower—"I thought your husband intended to retire from business. Mrs. Glister—"The trouble is that John is never satisfied. Just when he thinks he has made money enough he joins another golf club."

— Successful Recital: "That story you told at dinner pleased our host very much," said Gazzam. "I'm glad he liked it," replied Mullins, deeply gratified. "Yes, he said that he had never heard it told better."—Harper's Bazar.

— Doctor—"Your wife is a very sick woman, and I have my doubts as to her recovery." Husband—"Oh, she'll pull through all right. Her dressmaker sent home a new gown yesterday and she has't tried it on."

— Cannibal Chief—"Is the missionary about fat enough for the pot, slave?" Chef—"No, your imperial majesty, the fellow simply will not fatten. Do you know, I believe he is secretly worrying over something."—Fliegende Blaetter.

— "Did you know that Miss Bjones was going to marry young Smith?" "I knew it, but I cannot understand how a girl as intelligent as she is can consent to marry a man stupid enough to want to marry her."—Harlem Life.

— Smith (angrily)—"I understand you said my face would stop an automobile?" Jones—"I certainly never said anything of the kind." Smith—"Then, I must have been misinformed?" Jones—"That's what you have. Instead of stopping at sight of your face any reputable automobile would increase its speed."—Chicago News.

SELECTIONS

TEETH MADE OF PAPER.

Latest Things In Dentistry Are Paper Mache Molars.

Paper teeth are the latest thing in dentistry, says the New York Press. For years some substance has been sought for which could replace the composition commonly employed for making teeth, and a fortune awaited the man who was lucky enough to hit upon the right material. Although paper has some disadvantages, they are small compared to its many qualifications, and paper teeth are likely to be used exclusively, at least until a more perfect material is found.

Up to this time china has been used almost entirely, but it presents so many disadvantages that dentists always have been on the lookout for some other substance which could replace it. Not only does china resist the action of the saliva and turns black, but china affects the nerves of the jaws. People who wear false teeth often complain of suborbital neuralgia, and this is put down by many dentists as being caused by the heat or cold acting on the china or porcelain. Porcelain or mineral composition also is liable to chip or break, and for these reasons has never been satisfactory.

The paper teeth are made of papier mache, which is submitted to a tremendous pressure until they are as hard as required. Their peculiar composition renders them cheap, and the price of a set of teeth will go down considerably owing to the new invention. The color of the papier mache can also be made to vary, which is an important point, as no two sets of teeth are identical in color, some teeth having a strong yellowish cast, while others are bluish white. In order therefore to obtain the right tint the coloring matter has only to be introduced into the mixture before the tooth is cast in order to match the other teeth exactly. It is in this particular that china teeth often fail to appear natural, their color differing from the other teeth in the mouth and showing that the tooth is artificial.

Burmese Marriage Rites.

Of all the marriage rites of which one ever heard those of Burma bear away the palm for conciseness and sweet simplicity. Here it is upon the dusky lady that the pleasing duties of courtship devolve. She sees a youth whom she deems calculated to make her happy and forthwith offers him a stick of candy. If he accepts her proposal, he promptly eats the token of affection and they are thereby made man and wife. There is no further ceremony, and no witnesses are necessary. In the act of eating alone this most primitive marriage rite consists. But if, on the contrary, the youth is not willing, he assures her that that particular kind of candy is not to his taste, and the maiden must seek elsewhere for one more appreciative of her candy and her affections.

— "Omed," whispered the dark romantic maiden, "what is the light of love?" "The light of love," murmured Omed, with a faraway look, "is generally the gas turned down to a mere blue spark."

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, Pa., was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters,' and to my great joy and surprise the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and I am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at R. R. BELLAMY'S drug store. †

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, January 19.—The general under-current of sentiment in local cotton circles was more bullish to-day than at any time of late. Shorts were given a bad scare at the start by a sensational advance in the English market, the feature of the latter being a rise of six points in the January delivery. The first sale of January on the local exchange was at an advance of twelve points on last night's closing and from this level the uplift tapered down to a rise of two points on October. Throughout the first hour trading was very heavy, with Europe easily the leading buyer. Business for Southern account was almost exclusively to the bull side, local shorts covered energetically and several Wall street commission houses purchased the March, May and August positions in a moderate way, at the same time selling the new crop deliveries. Towards mid-day operations fell off quite rapidly, but the market held generally firm and no serious setback in prices was recorded. Early afternoon transactions were comparatively small, but later in the day business picked up. As the weekly statistical summaries averaged up in very bullish form, the late feeling was strong. The market was finally quiet with present crop months two to six points higher and next crop options unchanged to three points lower.

IT BELONGS TO HER.

THAT IS WHAT A MAN SAYS WHEN A WOMAN'S GOWN PLEASES HIM.

Women Dress to Please the Men, and It Is Right That They Should—It Is a Libel, However, to Say That They Wish to Annoy One Another.

There is a little ring of sarcasm in this that somebody has said, "Women dress either to please men or to annoy one another."

Now, there is a bit of truth in it, too, even though I am certain a man is the author, and how does he know? Women do dress to please men, but they do not dress to annoy one another. My independent sisters may declare that the man is altogether wrong and that I am wrong in asserting that he is right.

Of course, my independent woman, when you see a hat that accords with your fancy you do not deliberately stop before it and say, "I wonder if the men I know will like that," but you try it on to see how well you look beneath it, and if when you appear in it the menfolk tell you it is pretty and that you look extremely well when wearing it, you cling to that hat as long as it is the least bit presentable. This is quite right. You need not be ashamed to own that it is so. But as for women dressing to annoy one another—right here I would like to correct that impression. It is a false one that men have somehow got into their heads and hug fondly to their hearts. Every woman likes other women to admire her clothes, but there are few women indeed who give a thought when buying new gowns to how they will or will not dazzle their neighbors. This thought may come later, but it is quite accidental when it does. At any rate, women do not dress to annoy one another.

Let me tell you something, you women who are honest enough to admit that you like to know that your gowns and your millinery are pleasing to brothers, husbands and sweethearts—let me tell you what in dress pleases men most. It is moderation. Extremes never catch their fancy.

If the rainy day skirt that you have been sensible enough to adopt is a bit too short and you chance to ask a man how he likes it, he will promptly answer that it is too short. If a dress trails in an extreme manner, he just as promptly condemns it because it is too long. The skirt that fits too tight pleases him not. Do you remember how the lords of creation declared openly their disapprobation of the huge sleeves we once wore, because, they said, they disfigured the outline of a woman's figure? The gown that is cut extremely low at the neck and the gown that is built up stiff and high in the collar are not approved by the sterner sex.

"What do I consider constitutes a well dressed woman?" said a man who has been much in the society of women. "Well, whether her gown be silk or calico, I would say that it is the woman whose clothes have the appearance of belonging to her." And one must acknowledge that this man is right. Clothes selected and made to suit one's style are always a delight to the artistic eye, and somehow nature has endowed each and every one of us with an eye for form. We may not be able to put a finger on just the spot where the fault lies, but we do know when "something is wrong." When a man is shown some startling fashion and is assured when he criticises that it is the "latest thing," his refuge usually is: "Well, I don't care, it doesn't look right. There is something wrong with it, but I suppose you know." But "you" never feel quite comfortable when she dons that piece of faddishness. She always gets into it with a daring spirit. And this is something that a woman does not enjoy doing when it comes to the matter of clothes.

A man always likes neutral tints. Occasionally one finds a man who likes bright shades, but to please him these must be unobtrusively presented. The praises of the black gown and hat have been sung by masculinity for—well, I do not believe any one now living could tell of the first time.

"The girl looked so nice but simple," is a remark, when made by a man, means the greatest amount of praise that he can bestow. It means that he was thoroughly pleased with that girl's appearance.

If you will turn back the pages of fashion's record you will find that the present day styles are the perfection of all that goes to make up moderation in dress. Never have the modes been so artistic, form and color both considered. There are extremes, fads, of course, but so few women care to take these up that they die in their infancy.

With the exaggerated styles in dress have gone the exaggerated styles in coiffure. No woman nowadays draws her hair too low over her brow, or over her ears, or piles it up until her head looks like anything but what nature intended it should look like. And men like simple hairdressing as well as simple effects in gowning. A man's ideal woman is the one with hair pasted and drawn away from the brow in soft, waving lines. Of course, this style is not always becoming. I am only telling of an ideal. There is a certain sweet faced actress who, I think, would win the medal if a vote were taken among men as to which, of all the stage women, charmed them most when upon the stage. This little woman wore her hair in man's ideal way. If she had worn an elaborate coiffure, all curls and fluffs, no matter how becomingly it framed her face, I am certain not half so charming would she have appeared in masculine eyes as she did with her glossy brown locks arranged in the simple way that she wore them. The part she played was a womanly part, and I have heard a dozen or more men talk about "her dear little well set head."

But, my dear girl and the mother of this girl, whether we dress to please our menfolk or not and whether we are rich or poor, we are bound to be interested in the clothes we wear and the clothes that our neighbors wear, and it is not in the least below or unworthy your dignity or mine to wish to dress well. And to dress well one does not need to spend a fortune or to be extravagant. Dress as becomes your station and your style. It will only take a little thought to determine what colors suit you best, and if you are as slender as a reed have a little fold here and there, and if you are decidedly plump do be careful of the big brocades, and a few other things do or do not, though fashion may try to induce you to do otherwise. An unobtrusive individuality in dress is always charming.—Margaret Hannis in St. Louis Republic.

A New Consumption Cure.

A new remedy for tuberculosis, developed in France, has been reported to the state department by United States Commercial Agent Atwell at Roubaix. It is a treatment called to the attention of the Academy of Medicine by Dr. Mendel and consists of the daily injection into the bronchial tubes of essence of eucalyptus, thyme and cinnamon held in solution in olive oil. The oil in descending slowly comes into contact with the walls of the tube and upper lungs. The gas set free saturates the air in the lungs and acts on the mucous membrane. In 16 cases treated, after one or two weeks there was in all a lessening or complete cessation of the cough and expectoration as well as a return of sleep, appetite and strength.

Guarding the Crossings.

A new electric signal, invented for railroad crossings, gives a series of signals that enables everybody to tell how close an approaching train may be. It is entirely automatic, and the first signal is given at crossroads when the train is 1½ miles away by ringing a bell and displaying a signal that a train will pass within three minutes.

The next signal is given when the train is half a mile away and reads: "Don't cross on peril of your life. Train approaching." It is thought that this will prevent many accidents.—Philadelphia Call.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR.

The young man was either an optimist or the possessor of a Harveyized steel armor plated nerve. Perhaps he was a little of both.

A short time ago he came to the conclusion that he would like to insure his life. With this object in view he made application to a prominent company. After filling up the necessary form he received an invitation to call upon the medical officer of the company and undergo the usual medical examination. In due course he presented himself at the office of the examining physician.

Requesting the young man to remove his coat and vest, the doctor produced a stethoscope and began his examination. All at once he stopped and regarded the candidate with an expression of alarm.

"Young man," he said, "do you think you can bear a shock?"

"Oh, I think so!" was the cheerful response. "Fire away and let me hear the worst."

"You have only one lung!" announced the doctor solemnly.

"Well, what of that?" retorted the candidate, with the utmost composure. "I never told you I had any more, did I?"

"And yet," said the doctor, "you apply to a respectable company for a policy of life insurance. Do you expect to get it?"

"I certainly do—not only that, but I think I ought to get it at a substantial reduction in the premium."

"Upon what ground, may I ask?"

"Upon the ground that, having only one lung, I am 50 per cent less liable to contract consumption than if I had two lungs."—New York Journal.

SATISFIED CUSTOMERS

Have been the best investment I have made in business. Selling nothing but well made goods from the best factories, I have had to sell close to meet the prices of shoddy stuff, and sometimes have lost a sale; but I am now reaping my reward, and can justly claim, "once a customer always a customer."

Values are up, but on many lines I anticipated the advance by buying largely. That my customers get the benefit of my foresight you can ascertain by comparing prices.

BARIUM ROCK SPRING WATER.

(Old Poison Spring), is nature's specific for every form of skin disease and blood poison. It does not, like soap and ointment, merely destroy for a time the external signs, but goes to the root of the evil and drives out the poison in the blood which causes the eruptions to appear.

METHODIST PARSONAGE,
ROCKINGHAM, N. C., Oct. 14, 1898.

I can bear testimony to the great value of Barium Rock Spring Water for Eczema and other eruptive diseases of the skin. I have known MANY CASES CURED, some of them of the most stubborn character.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 20.

A THOUSAND MILES A DAY.

First of the Atlantic Coast Line Florida Specials on Its Way South—Magnificently Appointed.

The Charleston News and Courier of yesterday, in speaking of the Atlantic Coast Line's superb special trains from the North to Florida, says:

The first train of the "special" service left New York at 12.25 P. M. Tuesday, January 16, and arrived in Charleston at 7.46 yesterday morning. It is unquestionably one of the finest trains in the country. As made up in New York this first of the four trains used in this service consisted entirely of Pullman cars. Beginning with the Pullman baggage car No. 2, the train was equipped throughout with broad vestibules. Next to the baggage car was the dining car St. James, compartment car Guatemala, sleeping cars Amphion and Delphos and observation car Courtier.

The baggage car is usually an important but uninteresting adjunct to travelling, but "No. 2" has other functions than the mere carrying of trunks, golf sticks and grips. At the forward end is established a small, low-pressure turbine engine, driven by steam from the locomotive, and this in turn drives an electric dynamo. Not only are the incandescents fed from this machine, but it also is constantly engaged in filling the storage batteries beneath each car. This insures a supply of light even in the event of a temporary disarrangement of the motor. A thoroughly competent electrician is in charge of the electric plant.

The dining car St. James is a model of its kind. The fittings and furnishings are the best that money can buy. Soft velvet carpet covers the floor; handsome leather cushioned seats invite the hungry to sit and scan the menu cards, while deft waiters pass noiselessly about. Over each snow-clad table is a rustic stand filled with growing plants and flowers and ferns. Breakfast, luncheon and dinner are served, and a new menu card is made up for each meal. Lunch is at midday, and yesterday the card read like this:

Bouillon.
Radishes. Young Onions
Roast Chicken, stuffed.
Small Cutlets of Veal, Tomato Sauce.
Banana Fritters, Wine Sauce
Cold Meats.

TOOK A WILMINGTON BOY.

Tramp in Charleston Said to Have Kidnapped Johnnie Daniels.

[Charleston News and Courier.]

A tramp touring the South under the cognomen of "Irish," paused for a day in Wilmington, N. C., to brush the cinders from his duster and catch a breath of sea breeze. On his departure he carried with him little Johnnie Daniels, a boy about 11 years of age. He also forced another boy to accompany him, saying he was going to take them to Charleston. The latter boy, however, escaped in Florence and it is presumed that "Irish" has reached the city with the other boy in tow.

Chief Boyle has received a communication from the child's parents, in which they describe the boy as being rather small, with dark brown eyes and small features. The police are on the lookout for the stolen child and if he is here he will no doubt be recovered.

Martin Bergen Killed His Wife, Two Children and Himself at North Brookfield, Mass.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NORTHBROOKFIELD, MASS., Jan. 19.—Martin Bergen, the catcher of the Boston base ball team of the National League, killed his wife and two children and committed suicide at his home here to-day. An axe was the implement used in taking the life of Mrs. Bergen and one of the children, while a razor was employed to cut the throat of the other child, a little girl, and of the man himself. It is thought the action was due to insanity. It has been suspected for some time that Bergen was a victim of mental derangement.

The tragedy was discovered by the neighbors who found the body of Bergen and the girl lying on the kitchen floor. Deep cuts in the throat of the child and its father showed how death had been inflicted and a blood-stained razor lay nearby. Further investigation showed that Mrs. Bergen and the little boy also had been killed. Their bodies lay upon a bed in the chamber and near by was an axe covered with blood.

The head of both the woman and child had been crushed by the blunt end of the axe and presented horrible wounds. Bergen was 29 years of age. His wife was of about the same age, the little girl was eight or nine years old and the boy a little younger.

SENATOR HALE MAKES A SPEECH.

Regarded as Sensational in Interest and International in Its Importance.

AS TO BRITISH-BOER WAR.

Declared That Nine-tenths of American People Sympathised With Boers—Allen's Resolution on Recognition of the Boer Republic.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—A speech, sensational in its interest and international in its importance, was delivered in the Senate to-day by Senator Hale, Republican, Maine. The occasion of the utterance was the simple question whether a resolution introduced by Senator Allen, Populist, Nebraska, calling for information as to the recognition by this country of diplomatic representatives of the Transvaal republic should be directed to the President or to the Secretary of State. Senator Hale made the question the text of an impassioned speech in which he declared that nine-tenths of the American people sympathized with the Boers in their gallant struggle for liberty against one of the greatest powers in the world.

At the opening the Allen resolution, calling upon the Secretary of State for information as to whether any representative of the Transvaal had applied to the United States government for recognition, and if such application had been accepted, and if not, why not, was laid before the Senate.

Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin, moved that the resolution be directed to the President and he be requested to furnish the information, if not in compatible with public interests. The Senate, he said, had no right to demand information from the President, but the President was the absolute judge as to whether it was proper to communicate the information asked for. He utterly repudiated the doctrine advanced repeatedly by Senators that the people were entitled to information from day to day regarding the conduct of our foreign business.

It was perfectly manifest, he thought, that diplomacy to be successful, must be correct. It was evident, too, that from the status of foreign affairs, the Secretary of State was the servant of the President and not of Congress.

Senator Spooner maintained that the President ought to have discretionary power about giving out information, as it was given not only to the American people, but to the world. Even information given by the President in executive session could not always be held in confidence.

Senator Allen held that the Secretary of State could with perfect propriety be reached by such a resolution as his. He declared the matter with which his resolution dealt was a matter of record—of history—and could not, he thought, affect any diplomatic negotiations. "All that we want," said Senator Allen, "is information."

Senator Spooner regarded it as gross impudence to call upon the Secretary of State, and a reflection upon the Senate itself, to ask for the transmission of confidential information for which the President alone was responsible.

Senator Allen replied at length to Senator Spooner, in the course of which he said it had been reported throughout the country that the Populist party had gone to pieces. "I say to you, Mr. President," said Senator Allen, "that these statements are circulated with a political purpose. There are more Populists in the country to-day than ever before. We can cast 2,500,000 votes, and not all of those voters are fools either. The organization, far from having gone to pieces, is stronger to-day than at any previous time."

In opposition to the amendment, Senator Teller expressed his sympathy with the British.

Senator Hale, Maine, did not regard as essential an amendment that either the President or the Secretary of State should give to the American people information regarding the negotiations between the United States and Great Britain and the Transvaal.

"I have yet to be made to believe," he said, "that any duly accredited representative of that brave people in South Africa has appeared before the President of the United States and been denied a hearing. If that be true, the sooner we are informed about it the better for the American people.

"I do not doubt that the American people agree with me that the war which Great Britain is waging is the most fell blow at human liberty that has been struck in the last century. I do not doubt that the administration, representing the people of the United States, feels to-day as I feel on the subject and as nine-tenths of the American people feel."

He quoted from a speech of Mr. Balfour in which the British statesman had declared the Boer war had knit together every branch of the English-speaking race.

"I deny, sir," said Senator Hale, with great feeling, "that the American section of that race is in sympathy with Great Britain in the South African war to stamp out the liberty of a people. I deny that the American people are to be tied to the chariot wheels of war against the South African republics. And when the leader of the Conservatives in the House of Commons asserts that he should be met by some disclaimer from this side of the Atlantic.

"I do not wish international complications," said Senator Hale, in conclusion. "I do not wish war. I recall that we have not been so much in love with neutrality in times past that we could not speak up boldly for Hungary, Poland, Armenia, Cuba and Greece; and I do not know why it is now that we must speak with bated breath in favor of liberty." "I do not believe," said he earnestly, "that the English people are in favor of this war. I believe that the great Queen, on bended knees, has prayed that the war might be averted; I do not believe that the great premier of England favored the war. It was the act and movement of a sharp cabinet minister, engaged with gold seekers, which favored the war."

The resolution, as amended by Senator Spooner, was adopted.

The Financial bill was laid before the Senate, and Senator Morgan resumed his speech. One of the principal points Senator Morgan made against the bill was that it conferred too great power on national banks. He strongly argued against the further disqualification of silver as a money metal because of the use which could be made of it by the United States in the island possessions of this country.

The Senate then adjourned until Monday.

House of Representatives.

The Pension appropriation bill, carrying $145,245,250, was passed by the House to-day.

Mr. Barney, of Wisconsin, in charge of the bill, said the Commissioner of Pensions estimated the bill during the coming year would largely decrease, but the appropriation should not be reduced owing to the pendency of 25,000 Spanish war claims, which five or six millions of dollars would cover.

Mr. Talbert, South Carolina, suggested that the pension laws were now liberal enough to dispense with the Friday night sessions, at which special bills were passed to pension "bounty jumpers" and "coffee coolers."

Mr. Curtis, Kansas, traced some of the rulings of the commissioner of pensions to the "startling false and fictitious charge made in 1893 that thousands of fraudulent pensions were on the rolls."

"If the present commissioner is not conducting the office properly is not the remedy in the hands of the administration," asked Mr. Bartlett, Georgia.

"I do not believe the President endorses the act of the commissioner," replied Mr. Curtis. "I do not believe he knows what is going on."

"Is it not his duty to know?"

"He has not the time to examine into minor details."

Mr. Robinson, Indiana, joined in the assault upon the rulings of the pension office.

Mr. Gaines, Tennessee, argued at some length in favor of his scheme to break up trusts by denying them the use of the mails. This method, he said, had effectually suppressed lotteries in the United States.

The bill passed and the House adjourned.

IN HONOR OF LEE.

Confederate Veteran Camp of New York Celebrate—Mrs. Davis Present.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, January 19.—The tenth annual banquet of the Confederate veteran camp of New York, given in honor of General Robert E. Lee, was held at the Waldorf-Astoria to night, three hundred persons being in attendance. One of the features was the presence of a large number of women, members of the families of the camp members.

Edward Owen, commander of the camp, presided. While the dinner was in progress, Mrs. Jefferson Davis was escorted into the centre box of the balcony overlooking the banquet hall. She was given an ovation. Fans and napkins were thrown into the air and flowers were flung to the box from the tables below. In a short time Mrs. Davis was surrounded by a group which deserted the banquet tables to greet the ladies. An informal reception of an hour or more was accordingly held by the widow of the former head of the Confederacy.

BULLER'S FORCES MOVE CAUTIOUSLY

Boers Making Every Effort to Resist the Assault of the British.

A GREAT BATTLE EXPECTED.

It is Thought There Will Be Two or Three Days of Continuous Fighting—Buller Has an Army of 40,000 Men—News from Ladysmith.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

LONDON, January 20, 4.30 A. M.—Every hour that General Buller delays his combined attack makes his position stronger. Transports continue to arrive at Durban, and fresh troops are being sent up the line to reinforce those in front of Colenso. It appears that General Buller's troops, north of the Tugela, number at least 22,000, and possibly 25,000, with fifty guns. His total forces, forming a great outer curve southwest of Ladysmith, probably number 40,000 men.

Fighting Near Acton Homes.

SPEARMAN'S CAMP, NATAL, Thursday, January 18, 8.25 P. M.—The Boer trenches have been persistently shelled by the naval guns all day long. Small parties of Boers were seen at intervals, and a large force, from the direction of Ladysmith, was seen trekking towards the northwestward British position. A balloon did good service in observing that Lyttonton's force made a demonstration in the direction of the Brakefontein kopjes, four miles north of the British position under cover of a heavy artillery fire, to which the Boers did not respond. On the left General Warren's troops remained in possession of two prominent kopjes, behind Spion Kop. There was some Boer sniping, but it was ineffective.

Lord Dundonald, with a body of mounted troops, came into action this afternoon with a force of Boers west of Acton Homes. After a fight he occupied several kopjes, which he is still holding. Field Cornet Heilbium was killed. Twenty burghers were killed or wounded and fifteen prisoners taken. Two British soldiers were killed and two wounded.

Expecting Battle.

SPEARSMAN'S CAMP, January 19.—Sir Charles Warren and Lord Dundonald are continuing a cautious advance, hourly expecting battle. There has been light artillery firing here, at Ladysmith and at Chieveley.

Natives report that the kopjes are full of Boers.

LONDON, January 20.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Spearman's farm, or camp, as the correspondents now describe it, dealing with Lord Dundonald's movement to the west of General Warren's force, already cabled, says:

"His success gives us control of an easy entrance to Ladysmith. Our guns continue to bombard the Boer lines, the Boers replying, but feebly. General Warren is advancing steadily.

Buller's Wagon Train.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Times has the following dispatch from Pietermaritzburg, dated Thursday:

"General Buller's wagon train is nineteen miles in length and embraces four hundred wagons and five thousand animals. As some of the drifts are narrow and muddy, only one wagon is able to cross at a time. The officers are betting two to one that Ladysmith will be relieved to morrow (Friday.)"

While Buller's forward operations, which began on January 10th, developed rather leisurely, the Boers appear to be fully aware that they must meet a strenuous assault. Balloon observers have roughly estimated that ten thousand Boers are using spade and pick in artificially strengthening positions which nature has rendered easy of defence.

Military critics, in touch with the War Office, think that news that general fighting has begun may be expected at any hour. It is not thought that one day's fighting will settle the fate of Ladysmith, but rather that there will be two or three days of continuous fighting.

Boers Evacuated Colenso.

LONDON, January 20.—The Standard publishes the following, dated Thursday, from Spearman's camp:

"It is reported that the Boers opposite Colenso, on finding that General Buller had outmanœuvred them, crossed south of the Tugela on Monday and set fire to all the houses in the village.

"As the force from Chieveley advanced, the Boers retired before them to trenches on a hill in line with Colenso. Our infantry advanced in skirmishing order to the attack, followed by supports and reserves, our cavalry scouting on the right close up to the river. The Boer forces at Colenso must have been considerably weakened by the dispatch of large reinforcements westward to meet General Buller's advance, and they now hurriedly evacuated the trenches and the kopjes opposite the village and scattered before our shrapnel. By evening none of the enemy was left in rifle shot of Colenso. The British force then retired to Chieveley.

Methuen's Movements.

MODDER RIVER, January 18.—General Methuen, who is in robust health, personally directed another strong reconnoissance yesterday. The Highlanders succeeded in driving the Boers from the Brush river bank by long range volleys. The Boer fire was ineffective.

LONDON, January 19, 4.20 P. M.—The War Office has made public dispatches from Field Marshal Lord Roberts, dated to-day, recording the scouting movements in Cape Colony and adding:

"A Boer deserter states that the enemy suffered severely in attacking French's advanced posts, January 15. Seventy Boers are still unaccounted for.

Nearing Ladysmith.

LONDON, January 20.—A Durban special dated Thursday says:

"It is reported here that Lord Dundonald has smashed a Boer convoy.

"General Buller is said to be within twelve miles of Ladysmith and General Warren to be about six miles to the rear."

KENTUCKY CONTEST.

Board Hearing Testimony in Behalf of the Republican Contestants.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

FRANKFORT, KY., January 19.—This afternoon the hearing of the testimony on behalf of Governor Taylor and Lieutenant Governor Marshall will begin under the plan of procedure. Four days were allowed for the contestant's testimony. In that time less than 50 out of 350 summoned could be heard. The contestants have a much larger number of witnesses here from all over the State and they have but five days in which to present their testimony. There are grave fears of trouble when it is found that many of the witnesses cannot possibly be heard.
